Poor little fellow! He coughs so hard he cannot sleep. That makes him weak and sickly all the next day. His brother thinks this coughing is terrible. So do we, for we know that just a few doses of will stop the cough. For sixty years it has been the standard remedy with men, women, and children for colds, coughs, and all throat and lung diseases. It contains no narcotic or poison of any kind. Be sure that you get Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Accept no cheap and worthless substitute.

When Hawaii was shocked with the awful tale of suffering of the survivors of the American ship Eclipse abandoned at sea, on January 11, a thousand miles from here, the last had probably been heard of that ill-starred vessel, though her ghost may rise in investigations now taken up by the mainland Federal authorities, following addavits of her sailors here as to bad condition of her boats. But whether or not the last has been heard of her, there are few here, if any, familiar with her unlucky record, or, if they remember the incident related below, they have falled to identify it with the vessel recently lost. The loss of the Eclipse, says Shipping Illustrated of New York, has awakened a flood of interesting yarns. Many strange happenings befell the Eclipse before she went to the bottom. One of the most mysterious, occurred several years ago and within a hundred niles of where she was lost.

Coal-laden, she was bound from Newcastle to Honolulu. She lost the trade wind December 1 and the next day opened up with one of those corchingly hot calms for which the Pacific is noted.

During the forenoon watch there was the faintest suspicion of a breath of air and dire heat hung over the vessel. Every available sail, even to three skysalls, was set to woo the sulky, weak draughts, but the sea seemed to be in the deepest slumber. At noon all hands were sent to dinner, there seeming to be nothing to lo until the wind gathered strength. The sailors were at their meal about fifteen minutes when a report as of a discharged cannon was heard and the nate tumbled out on deck to see what ad happened. He saw that the mizen royal was split from head to foot through the bunt. Puzzled as to how such a thing could happen he bawled: 'Lay aft here, one of you, and stow the mizzen royal. Lively!" John Nicholson, able seaman, with the reputation of being the first aloft, went up the ratlines to the dizzy height. As soon as he was planted at the head of the topgallant shrouds the mate went below to resume eating. He told the captain the mizzen royal had split. The captain would not believe him. What was there to split it? "There's don't like;" said the mate. The captain went up to see for himself and had about half ascended the companionway when there was a convulsive shake of the Eclipse's hull, a lant, Mrs. J. H. Hankey, E. In a crippled condition the Eclipse managed to reach Honolulu. Great underwriter experts and marine surveyors puzzled their heads and wrote papers by the wholesale but it was never agreed as to what had hit the Eclipse.

Washington, April 10, 1908.
Robert W. Breckons, Esq., United States Attorney, Honolulu, T. H., Sir.—I am duly in receipt of your letter of the 26th ultimo, relative to the portion of the city of Honolulu known as Iwilei. The Department is of the opinion that the Edmunds Act, to which you refer, ought not to be used in connection with a matter of purely local concern. The subject mensioned seems to be wholly a local consideration, and the Department is in clined to coincide with the view you indicate that it should be dealt with by the local authorities. At the same time, the Department refrains from giving you positive instructions in the premises, and must depend upon you for appropriate action, since it is evident that it cannot be promptly and anceurately informed of any developments which may arise.

Very respectfully, C. HARLES J. BONAPARTE.
